RECLUSE FOUND DEAD IN BED WHEN POLICE FORCE WAY INTO HOUSE WHERE HE HAD ISOLATED HIMSELF

WILLIAM JOHNSON, 321 DORRANCE STREET, WAS LAST SEEN ALIVE BY NEIGHBORS ON DE-CEMBER 24TH — UPBRAIDED POLICE ON THREE OCCASIONS WHEN THEY ENTERED HIS HOME

William Johnson, a recluse, was found dead this afternoon after police had forced an entrance into his residence, 321 Dorrance street.

Johnson, long a resident here and for many years employed in the T. L. Leedom Carpet Mills, had for the past several years acted in a peculiar manner. He would not associate with anyone and lived by himself at the Dorrance street address after the death of his parents.

Johnson would confine himself into his home for weeks at a time and upon three different occasions police have forced an entrance into the place for the purpose of locating the man.

Upon each of the former visits of the police Johnson would upbraid them for entering his home without his permission and when informed that they had entered merely for the purpose of discovering his condition and to see if they could be of service to him, he replied upon one occasion, "I have good neighbors and if I want anything I'll ask them and not the police."

Johnson was last seen alive by neighbors on or about December 24th. Neighbors say that not a window curtain or a thing about the house, so far as outward evidence would indicate, had been disturbed since that time.

Today Chief of Police John J. McGuckin and Dr. George T. Fox again forced an entrance into the house through the rear door and Johnson was found dead in bed.

During the past few years Johnson had become exceedingly eccentric and while he would speak to neighbors yet his remarks were always brief. He would not discuss his affairs and considered it an intrusion when others attempted to do so.

He is said to have purchased bread in large quantities and is thought to have lived mainly upon that and water.

Physicians believe that Johnson had been dead several days. He was about 53 years of age.

Upon the first occasion when the police entered the house, Chief McGuckin was accompanied by Chas. A. Dougherty. This occasion was early in 1926. Then the second time an entrance was forced into the house, several weeks later. December 24th Officer Gallagher went in and Johnson was apparently as well as he had ever been.

Relatives of the dead man paid a visit to the house about two weeks ago. It was during the evening and the door of the house was found open. Nothing was seen of Johnson at that time. The next morning when the house was visited again the door which had been open the night before was found closed and locked.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—A bill to license barbers in Pennsylvania, sponsored by Representative Detrich, of Allegheny, is pending in the Legislature today. The bill would create a board of examiners and registration and provide a registration fee of $2.

YORK, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—Henry Lanius, blind senator in the Pennsylvania legislature from York county, is actively engaged in the interest of a bill before congress at Washington to permit the railroads of the United States to carry any blind person accompanied by a guide for one fare. The bill already has passed the senate and it has been reported favorably to the house of representatives.

Senator Lanius, himself handicapped by total blindness, has been active in work for relief of the blind for a number of years. The bill for which he is now working does not make it mandatory upon the railroads to carry blind persons and guides for the price of one fare, but only amends the federal railroad laws to permit carriers engaged in interstate commerce to adopt such a rule if they see fit to do so.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—Nearly one million persons visited the state forests of Pennsylvania during 1926, complete reports compiled here today at the Department of Forestry and Waters showed. It is the largest number that has visited the state forests since Pennsylvania began its forest land purchase program.

At the same time the department made public a detailed report showing that 560,525 trees had been planted during the year on state owned forests. Reports on visitors to the forests placed the number of hunters at 215,700, those who used the forest parks at 145,000 and those who used public camps at 111,824.

FORMER RESIDENT HERE FATALLY HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. Albert W. Williams, Of Riverside, Dies of Injuries
When Car Crashes

GOES THRU WINDSHIELD

A former resident of Bristol was so seriously injured in an auto accident early Sunday morning that she died a few hours later in the Zerbrugg Hospital, Riverside, N. J.

The dead: Mrs. Albert W. Williams, Riverside, N. J.

Early Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Williams, both former residents here, were returning to Riverside, N. J., in their car after attending the theatre in Philadelphia. They had with them their two children, Albert, Jr., 5; Gladys, 4; and two guests, Miss Mildred Johnson, of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Harry Kerber, Audubon, N. J.

The auto skidded on the icy street and the car crashed into a tree, when Mrs. Williams in an attempt to save her little daughter, whom she held on her lap, from injury, was thrown through the windshield of the sedan and her jugular vein severed.

The other occupants of the car were temporarily stunned and were terrified to see Mrs. Williams' head projecting through the shattered windshield. They extricated her with difficulty and passing motorists summoned a doctor who rushed the injured woman to the hospital, where surgeons found it impossible to stop the flow of blood from the severed vein.

Mrs. Williams was 27 years of age, and lived with her family at 527 Bridgeboro street, Riverside, N. J.

Mr. Williams for several years was manager of the Atlantic and Pacific store in the Forrest block on Mill street, Bristol, and lived in the apartment above the store with his family. It was there his children were born. From here he went to Millville, N. J., where as district manager he built up the business, and from there he was transferred to his present position in Riverside, N. J.

BRISTOL GIRL COMPOSES SONG WHICH WINS THE THIRD LEG ON SILVER CUP FOR GIRL RESERVES

Miss Mildred Bell Took Theme "The Rainbow Seeker" And Wrote Song Which Local Group Rendered At Contest
Held in Philadelphia Last Saturday Afternoon

BRISTOL High School is proud indeed to think that listed among the numerous Girl Reserves' songs there will appear one written by a member of the Senior Class of Bristol High, Miss Mildred I. Bell, of 240 Walnut street.

When the theme which inspired the writing of the song was mentioned, Miss Bell stated, "I chose the theme which the Girl Reserves will have for this year, 1927, as the theme for the song. Each year a certain theme is followed by the girls, and this year it is: 'The Rainbow Seeker'."

The result of Miss Bell's efforts shows that much forethought was put into the song:

From azure skies to verdant earth
There spreads a shining beam—
A rainbow fair whose colors
In each life should gleam.
If faint they be or bright,
They all blend firm and fast
Into perfect truth
And immortality at last.

To Girl Reserves the radiant beams
Are beckoning on;
That they may find true joy and peace
In deeds well done,
So let us all be seekers

Of the shining goal,
Which shall perfect flick'ring color rays
In every soul.

The writer of the song, likewise composed the music, which makes a splendid little composition. On Saturday evening a number of members of the Girl Reserves of the Bristol High School attended the mid-year frolic of the Reserves at the Germantown Branch Headquarters, 5820 Germantown avenue, and it was there that the song was first sung before other branches of the Reserves.

"The girls sang the song in a splendid manner," said Miss Bell, "and it helped us to win the third leg on the cup which has been in competition among the various Reserves groups." Miss Bell was the accompanist on this occasion.

The cup becomes the permanent possession of the Bristol Girl Reserves, now, because of their having the greatest percentage of their membership in attendance on Saturday evening; for having the largest delegation present; and for the success of Miss Bell's efforts in the composition of the above song.

STATE POLICE RAID A HILLTOWN TWP HOUSE

Three Men and One Woman
In Jail Awaiting A Hearing

A HOUSE OF ILL REPUTE

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 8.—Three women and one man are in the Bucks County Prison as a result of a raid five State Police officers made on a country residence in Hilltown township two miles from Dublin, at 9.45 last Saturday night.

Five men, residents of Perkaskie and Philadelphia, several of whom were married, were arrested by the police and taken before Justice of the Peace Irvin M. James late Saturday night. They were each fined $5 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The raid was conducted by Corporal Burgoon, in charge of the local substation of State Police, Troopers Felix R. Gowan and Bankert, of the local detail, and Troopers Otto Maske and Dean, of the Norristown substation.

Those arrested in the raid are Mrs. Clara Gilbert, aged 31, proprietress of the place, who is charged with maintaining a house of ill repute; Jessie Wiley, aged 34, and Peggy Helzel, aged 21, both of York, Pa., who are charged with being inmates of the place; and Lawrence Gilbert, aged 42, husband of the proprietress, who is charged with selling and possessing intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

The women are under quarantine in the Bucks County Prison and will be given hearings after the state medical examinations have been completed. Lawrence Gilbert was held by Justice James last Saturday night under $1,000 bail for a hearing.

When the State Police arrived Saturday night they found the doors of the Gilbert house locked. Front and rear doors were forced in and as the officers entered they found Mrs. Helzel in the act of serving liquor to several guests downstairs. When she noticed the police she tossed the liquor on the floor, breaking the container and spattering the alleged moonshine whiskey about the floor. Earlier in the week the police purchased liquor at the Gilbert place in the preliminary investigation.

It is said the place had been conducted for about three months. Numerous complaints had been received by the police and county authorities as to the nature of the place. Complaints came from the parents of young folks in Perkaskie, Dublin and Blooming Glen.

Serious charges will be pressed against those now in the Bucks County Prison. It is reported that the Gilbert place was rented several months ago from the owner, who is said to reside in that section of the county.

GRAVEL BLOCKS TRAFFIC AS CARS ARE WRECKED

Cars Upset on P. R. R. At Morrisville Bridge—Express
Barely Escapes Disaster

TROLLEYS ARE BLOCKED

Traffic on two tracks of the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad was tied up last night when four cars loaded with gravel were wrecked directly over the South Pennsylvania avenue bridge at Morrisville.

A New York road express train passed over the bridge a few hundred yards ahead of the gravel train. Had the express been following the gravel it is probable that it would have crashed into the wreckage with serious results.

Parts of the wrecked freight cars, as well as considerable of the gravel were thrown into the street, blocking all automobile and trolley traffic. A man and woman were driving under the bridge when the wreck occurred and the latter was said to have been injured by falling gravel. She was not removed to a hospital.

A train made up of gravel cars from the gravel pits near Fallington started for New York last night. At the Morrisville bridge one car left the rails and fell over onto the eastbound passenger track. This caused three other heavily loaded cars to jump the tracks and topple over. Heavy iron girders separating the tracks prevented the other three cars from falling over on the westbound tracks.

When the sides of the freight cars were ripped out great quantities of gravel fell between the opening of the bridge to the sidewalks and street below. Railroad officials hurried to the scene and had the railroad police stop all street traffic. All eastbound passenger trains were being run over westbound tracks early this morning. Gangs of railroad laborers were set to work with shovels removing the gravel while a wrecking crew was sent to the scene to clear the wreckage from the tracks. Both east and westbound trains were delayed. A large crowd visited the scene, but railroad police kept the curious ones from the tracks. Automobileists were compelled to make a detour at that point.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilkie Give Daughter Surprise

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkie, of Rose avenue and River Road, Croydon, tendered their daughter, Miss Ethel Wilkie, a surprise party on Saturday evening at their home.

The occasion was the eighteenth birthday anniversary of Miss Wilkie. The rooms were gaily decorated in vari-colored lights and cunning crepe paper creations.

A pleasant evening was enjoyed and Miss Wilkie received many handsome gifts, chief among which was a large red cedar chest, which was presented her by her parents.

Music, dancing and games occupied the evening until a late hour, when refreshments were served. A huge birthday cake bearing eighteen lighted candles filled the center of the table and attracted much attention.

The participants in the jolly evening affair were: Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkie, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkie and daughter, Anna, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Allen and daughter, Catherine, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Friday and son, Charles, the Misses Anna and Viola Wilkie, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis, Miss Marie Fisher and Mr. George Hattenfield, of Croydon, Pa.; Messrs. Harold Heath, Edgar Fernald and George Brantigan and Miss Clara Heath, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Frank Foster, of Burlington, N. J.

KNIGHTS ADD ANOTHER TO STRING OF VICTORIES

Defeat Fifth Ward Five By Score of Thirty-Seven
To Sixteen

CELTIC BEATS LEEDOM'S

The Knights of Columbus added another game to their streak of victories when they defeated the Fifth Ward last night by the score of 37 to 16 in a League game played in Lutheran Hall.

James Sweeney and "Lefty" Rodgers were the high scorers for the Knights, getting 4 field goal and one foul goal apiece. Eddie McIlvaine got 3 field goals and a foul basket. Coyle netted 2 field goals and one foul, Dugan 1 field and one foul goal, while Lake and Wilkinson got a field goal apiece.

Nickerson arched 3 two pointers for the ward team for the high individual score for the team. Rich and J. Parella each got 2 field goals and McIlvaine got the other two pointers.

It was a fast game throughout with the K. of C. having the better teamwork.

JUDGE RYAN GRANTS PAPERS TO 34 ALIENS

Total of 48 Applicants Were
On the List to Be Examined

TWO WOMEN INCLUDED

A number of Applicants Are Refused Papers When They Fail to Answer Questions

(Special to The Courier)

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 8.—Thirty-four aliens were granted citizenship papers yesterday in naturalization court conducted by Judge William C. Ryan and United States Examiner Stevens, of the Bureau of Naturalization, Philadelphia. There were forty-eight applicants on the list.

Judge Ryan welcomed the new citizens as residents of Bucks county and as new American citizens. There were two women to receive citizenship among the thirty-four who were granted citizenship yesterday.

Thirteen countries were represented as the native home of the applicants who were successful. The number of applicants and the countries in which they were born or previously naturalized were as follows: Italy, 7; Poland, 1; Germany, 3; Russia, 3; Czechoslovakia, 3; Canada, 2; Hungary, 6; Austria, 3; Yugoslavia, 1; Holland, 1; Lithuania, 1; England, 3; Ireland, 1.

There were fourteen farmers among the new citizens who received their final papers yesterday. Natives of England who were granted citizenship in each case were expert lace weavers employed at South Langhorne. There were but two laborers among the thirty-four successful applicants, the vocations listed being farmers, merchants, shoemakers, machinists, welders, tool makers, tailors and housewives.

One applicant was refused final papers because certain details in connection with his application had not been completed.

Another applicant did not remember what year he came to the United States and could not produce a certificate of arrival that is necessary with the application.

The new citizens who took the oath of allegiance to the United States were as follows:

Natives of Italy: Sebastiano Grida, farmer, Milford Square; Giacomo Asta, merchant, Bristol; Biagio Poane, shoemaker, Morrisville; Domenico Galle, farmer, Upper Black Eddy; Pietro Di Angelo, laborer, Bristol; Stephen Arcade, shoemaker, Doylestown; Raniero Carnignani, tailor, Quakertown.

Natives of Hungary: Antal Zambor, machinist, Upper Black Eddy; Morris Lempergel, farmer, Yardley; Andrew Simon, laborer, Lower Makefield township; Mathe Babelka, machinist, Lower Makefield township; John Malasies, farmer, Shelly; Andrew Pavelchak, laborer, Falls township.

Natives of Germany: Mrs. Mathilde Hohn, hotel proprietress, Doylestown; Charles Brauninger, farmer, Steinsburg; Max Schwende, toolmaker, East Rockhill township.

Natives of Russia: Michael Stanislaw, farmer, Haycock township; John Ransons, farmer, Perkaskie; Rubin Friedman, junk dealer, Quakertown.

Natives of Czechoslovakia: John Pekar, machinist, Sellersville; John Repa, farmer, Milford township; Josef Sedlak, tubing inspector, Sellersville.

Natives of Austria: Joseph Mang, farmer, Harrow; Philip Berger, farmer, Upper Black Eddy; Flomena Yasrab, housewife, Haycock township.

Natives of England: Edmund Hurt, lace maker, South Langhorne; William Hallam, fireman, South Langhorne; George Robert Carlin, lace weaver, South Langhorne.

Native of Poland: John Zukow, farmer, Ottsville.

Native of Canada: Joseph Nostadt, farmer, Harrow.

Native of Yugoslavia: Yosp Belac, janitor, Springfield township.

Native of Holland: Arie Burgers, welder, Bristol.

Native of Lithuania: Adam Uselis, farmer, Hilltown township.

Native of Ireland: Abraham Blair, farmer, Dublin.

Tower of Schenck Mansion Greatly Damaged by Fire

The tower of the large house known as Schenck's Mansion, Croydon, was considerably damaged by fire, yesterday. The flames were confined to the tower and a portion of the top floor.

Firemen from Bristol, Croydon, Cornwells and Hulmeville responded. The property is owned by George MacKenzie and Dr. A. L. MacKenzie. It is said that the insurance will not cover the loss.

The house is unoccupied and no idea as to the origin of the fire has been ascertained.

Mrs. Edwin King, daughter of Dr. A. L. MacKenzie, today requested the Courier to extend thanks and appreciation to the firemen of Croydon for the work which they did.

A PROPERTY DISPUTE

A noisy minority in this country is "demanding" that the controversy with Mexico shall be submitted to arbitration. They assume that the dispute is merely a misunderstanding over interpretation of Mexican laws and policies and that arbitration can settle the matter with honor to both nations.

Unfortunately the controversy is not susceptible of arbitration. If that were true and this country had to choose between arbitration and war, it would most certainly arbitrate, for if it did not it would be a traitor to its traditions and professed policies.

Mexico, by means of a "Constitution" never adopted by the people, is seeking to confiscate all Mexican land owned by Americans and other foreigners without any intention of remunerating the owners. Thus it is seen that the controversy with Mexico hinges upon the question whether Mexico will attempt to deprive American citizens of their property in a manner contrary to the laws observed throughout the world except in Russia and Mexico.

On what grounds can the two nations arbitrate? Mexico either persists in or withdraws from her purpose. And if she proceeds to carry out her threat, the United States either protects the property of her citizens in Mexico or stands by while Mexican "federal" pillage this property.

America recognizes the right of the Mexican government to take over any land within her national territory by due process of law and the payment of a fair price to the owner, but it does not recognize a law that permits a country to sell land to foreigners and then rob them of it by force of arms.

FIGHTING A CROP MENACE

The house at Washington has just approved an appropriation of $10,000,000 for the extermination of the European corn borer. If the appropriation passes it will be the largest ever made by congress for such a purpose. Though a staggering figure, it is clear every dollar of it can not only be used profitably but is urgently needed.

Since its inadvertent introduction in this country from its native heath in Europe this alien insect has made frightful progress toward destruction of the cornfields in eight eastern states and is still traveling westward, laying waste cornfields as it moves on its ravaging way.

Several of the destructive worms have been found in Illinois, the threshold of the great corn belt.

With the proposed congressional appropriation and cooperation of corn growers the bureau of entomology at Washington is confident it can halt the insect horde before it raises havoc in the corn belt. Director Howard, of the bureau, finds the struggle between man and insects is now on to the death with the odds in favor of man if he puts up a good fight.

It would be an economic calamity if the corn borer should make such inroads in the corn belt as to ruin even one crop. A bumper crop crop last year brought great hardship to the corn growers of the Middle West, but still greater suffering would result from an extensive crop shortage. Surplus crops can be pooled and withheld from the market for a better price, but a shortage of corn is a calamity in a corn-consuming country.

The farmers can be depended on to fight just as hard with this prospective federal aid as they would if they had to fight their battle alone.

What has gone before:

Tom Eggett will inherit his late father's department store if he can run it at a profit for three months. If he fails the property goes to Cyrus Crabb, general manager of the store who, with his assistant, Miss Abbott, schemes to run a bargain sale at a great loss before Tom takes charge. An employee, Grace Gordon, whom Tom loves, discovers the plot. Meanwhile Tom and his two pals, lacking home and funds, sleep at the store.

Now go on with the story—

CHAPTER VIII WHO'S DISCHARGED

PERCY had already found the clothing of the "burglars" and had held an inquest over it. In the opinion of all of them, Crabb included, nothing could be proved from a thorough search of the cast-off clothes. There was evidently no means of identification on them. But the ill-fitting clothes they now wore gave the boys away immediately to the trained eyes of the floorwalker.

"You are the burglars. You—you've stolen those clothes." Percy's heavy body was not accustomed to giving way to violent emotion like this. He fairly panted out the words.

"Take it from me, boy," said Tom imperturbably, "you're all wrong."

And with that he gave Percy a jab with his stick in the solar plexus that effectually stopped his short breath and his action. When he had recovered, the boys were out of sight. Percy's cries brought the manager and the officer on duty as well as a score of salesmen.

"They—they—went that—that way—and they had on—thousand dollars' worth—our clothes—deperate characters—knocked me out—went toward office," and Percy again sank to the floor.

Tom and his lieutenants leisurely pursued their way toward the office. Tom pointing out meantime the changes he was going to make in the chance? With unaccustomed fingers he inserted a sheet, very much on the bias, ran his handkerchief over the desk, placed her chair for her and smilingly invited the astonished girl to be seated.

In the meantime Dick had taken possession of Crabb's desk and Van was making himself comfortable at Miss Abbott's. Both of them were endeavoring to look like what they conceived to be the appearance of big business men, and were succeeding as poorly as possible. Neither knew what to do, but both were trying to look important.

Into the midst of this impressive atmosphere burst Crabb, Percy and the full hue and cry of the burglar chase.

"I saw them come in here," Percy was saying. Just then he caught sight of Tom looking through the door of the other room. "There he is now. There's the burglar who hit me over the head with a blackjack. That's him, Mr. Crabb."

Crabb, his fists doubled up, satisfaction in his face, advanced into the room and toward the smiling Tom. But the next instant his progress was barred by Dick, who had arisen at the entrance of the store people. Van sidled up beside him.

"Hey, you. Don't you know enough to knock before you enter the office of the General Manager? What do you want, and who do you want to see?"

Never before had Crabb been talked to in that store like this. He was half beside himself with rage. Beating in his most ferocious manner and his words tumbling out like hissing steam, he demanded:

"Who do you think you are?"

"Who am I? Listen, I'm the General Superintendent of this establishment. That's who I am."

"Boah," yelled Crabb.

layout of the store, the dress of the girls and the general deportment of the place. While the hue and cry for their capture continued all around them, the three came without haste or concern to a stairway beside which was a sign reading: "Office of the General Manager."

An instant later he had opened the door to his own office and entered. The room itself was unoccupied, but through the connecting door he saw a familiar and very welcome figure. It was Grace Gordon. She was standing at her desk, hat on, coat on a chair beside her. She had just stuffed the bank's letter into her pocket and was slowly obeying the orders of the general manager to leave.

"Why, of all people. I can't tell you how glad I am to see you." Tom removed his hat, he looked much better with it off on account of the apparent difference between the size of his hat and the size of his head. With dignity he entered the room, his nondescript companions following close at his heels. Grace, on her part, was a little bit embarrassed to see him. Nervously she took up her coat and prepared to put it on. With a gallant gesture, Tom strode forward to help her. He lingered a little longer over this task than was really necessary, and Grace was blushing as she picked up her bag and bowed politely to him.

"You always seem to be going somewhere when I see you, Miss Gordon. Don't you think you could stay longer? Can't you put off your errand a little? Really, I may need you. Please don't go just now."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Eggett. I'm not going on an errand at all. I'm leaving. I've just been discharged."

"Discharged? Discharged? Impossible. Ridiculous. Absurd. Never heard of such a thing. For pity's sake, who would discharge you?"

"Mr. Crabb discharged me for—"

"Crabb did? Why the old idiot. I always knew there was something the matter with him." As he spoke, Tom slipped Grace's coat from her shoulders, before she had a chance to button it. Against the fluttering protest of her hands he carried it carefully over to the hatrack and hung it up.

"Mr. Crabb discharged me because I—"

Again Tom interrupted. This time to lift off her hat. This, too, he carefully carried over to the rack.

"Take it from me, Miss Gordon, you are not discharged. Ah, don't you need a sheet of paper in the ma-

THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Ab, cavi! not at rain and snow,
For winter you'll soon meet.
And then 'twill sleet and sleet and sleet.
—O—
And sleet and sleet and sleet.

It's almost impossible to help a man who overestimates his own ability.

The person who never makes a mistake never makes anything.

He who laughs last, has told the joke.

The bathroom faucet ran, I guess,
About two hours or more.
That's why the family took a bath
Upon the bathroom floor.

The Girl: "Did I show you where I was tattooed?"

The Boy: "No; show me."
The Girl: "All right; we'll drive around that way when we go home."

Nothing else makes a fool grow like flattery.

CAR + RENT = A HOME

Being a Story of What Might Have Been

John Jones was an ordinary good citizen. He had a happy home (rented at so much per month), a good wife and two healthy, bustling youngsters.

Each month John paid the landlord $50.00, a moderate rental, and the Jones family was happy.

Came a time when John fell for the polished patter of the automobile salesman, $200.00 down and $40.00 a month he paid for his new "Four in Line" sedan.

For two years the Jones family enjoyed their new plaything. Then the Browns and the Grays flitted by in their "latest motor masterpieces" and the Joneses longed for more "zip," more speed, more cylinders, and four-wheel brakes. Getting a new car was the answer.

But—this time Jones happened to meet with a real estate salesman. He talked—Jones listened—learned much and received a hard sell. Translated into dollars and cents here was the jolt: His car, complete—plus freight, insurance and "extras," had cost him exactly $805.21. In the two years of steady running it had travelled over 7,000 miles at an average cost of five cents per mile—total $350.00.

In those same two years $1,200.00 had been spent for rent. Thus his expenditures for car and rent over the two year period amounted to $2,555.21. Allowing $200.00 for the present market value of the car meant a net expenditure of $2,355.21—wink nothing to show.

An average home would cost approximately $6,000.00. That same amount of money put into a home would have meant a clear title in seven years—and then no further payments for rent.

The Jones family have returned to the shoe leather route for transportation—and are paying on a home. Their former "surprise" happiness now becomes genuine joy. The new car will come later.

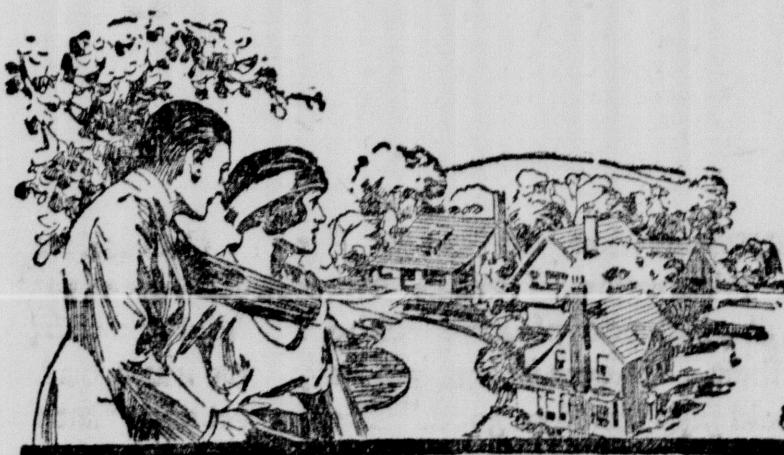

MORAL: Figure it out for yourself.

GARDENING AS A SPORT

The tremendous development of country and suburban life in zones surrounding cities in the United States is accompanied by the rapid growth of new recreational activities among those who seek in country air and surroundings, a foil for the unnatural excitement and environment of city life.

As is the case with the Englishman, the American is finding in the practice of gardening an ideal avocation; and interest in gardening is encouraged and intensified by the garden and flower show, which is now one of the chief features on the program of every progressive suburb. Originally fostered by the women, who centered their interest in flowers, the garden show is now attracting the attention of the men, who usually take pride in prize-winning vegetables.

Vegetable growing in home gardens, which for a time showed a tendency to decline, because of a lack of interest in money-saving occupations, is now on the increase as a result of suburban competition.

To grow the largest tomatoes, the first Golden Bantam corn, or take the prize for the best collection of vegetables at the community flower show, is as proud an honor as to win a cup in the golf tournament, and it is a prize which attracts far more competition.

There can be few first flight golfers, but to any owner of a 50-foot lot may be given the skill and good fortune necessary to grow the finest vegetables in the neighborhood.

And the neighborhood in which esteem is awarded to the best gardener, rather than the best golfer, needs make no apology for its social standards. They are sound, and will be lasting.

As a sport, gardening is superior to golf on every count. It is better for the health, especially in the case of elderly persons. In its intellectual and esthetic demands, it is incomparably superior.

A scientist might spend a lifetime in the study of the growth of a single seed, and die with his problem still unsolved. It is possible for the owner of a small suburban lot to create in his garden beauty which the greatest of artists could not surpass.

And gardening does not demand a large income for its enjoyment. The humblest cottage garden may often take the prize for the best specimens away from the large estate.

Daily News Letter

greatest complaint, however, is against the trappers and their traps.

"Trapping gives the racoon no chance. Hunter and dogs give the animals a chance at its life. Often the racoon outwits the man and the dogs. There's the sport. Trapping is not a sport, it is merely a mercenary occupation."

Reviewing 'coon hunting during the season which closed on January 15, Mr. Dayhoff stated that the 'coons were even more scarce than predicted during the pre-hunting season.

YORK, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—Lewis Crist and his pet bull dog went to sleep in Crist's restaurant here. Something happened to a gas oven and gas began to escape. Crist awoke and staggered to a window. His dog was dead—asphyxiated.

YORK, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—Controversy which has arisen here over Neva P. Miller Moss, Detroit woman who claims to be an escaped nun and who was arrested when she violated police orders denying her the privilege of speaking in the city, has brought about a breach between Mayor E. S. Huntentugler and City Solicitor Fred B. Gerber.

Following announcement that Michael S. Niles will represent the city when argument is heard in local courts on the appeal taken by Mrs. Moss from the mayor's police court sentence of $100 fine, or 30 days in jail the mayor declared that Niles had been retained because the city solicitor had "laid down" on the job.

The mayor stated that he had been compelled to retain Niles as his and the city's attorney because of what he characterized as apathy on the part of the city's regularly employed solicitor. The mayor said that he was informed that Mr. Gerber had told a number of people that he was "not interested in the case any longer" and that he would take no part in it.

When the mayor was asked to verify reports that John Coyle, Lancaster attorney, would represent him in the argument on the Moss woman's appeal, the mayor stated that he had never had, directly or indirectly, any correspondence or communication with Mr. Coyle on the case at hand. The mayor said that he understood that Mr. Coyle was being employed by interests opposed to Mrs. Moss' activities to attempt to prove her a fraud. Of these "interests" the mayor declared he knew nothing.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 8 (I.N.S.)—With the beginning of the second semester at Gettysburg College, co-eds of the institution began attending the regular morning chapel exercises, permission for which they petitioned the faculty. The petition was granted yesterday.

Vital news

Nothing so vitally concerns you in everyday life as the urge and necessity to buy or sell—to give or take—to borrow or exchange. Look through the advertisements of this paper and you will find that they embody the chief impulses of living.

The nation's life is clearly depicted in the national advertising.

Our individual lives depend upon this advertising to a remarkable degree.

A newspaper is a clearing-house for ideas and commodities. Reports of the shifting phases of life come to you through its news and editorial columns. But reports of the material things upon which you depend for sustenance, comfort and happiness come through the advertisements.

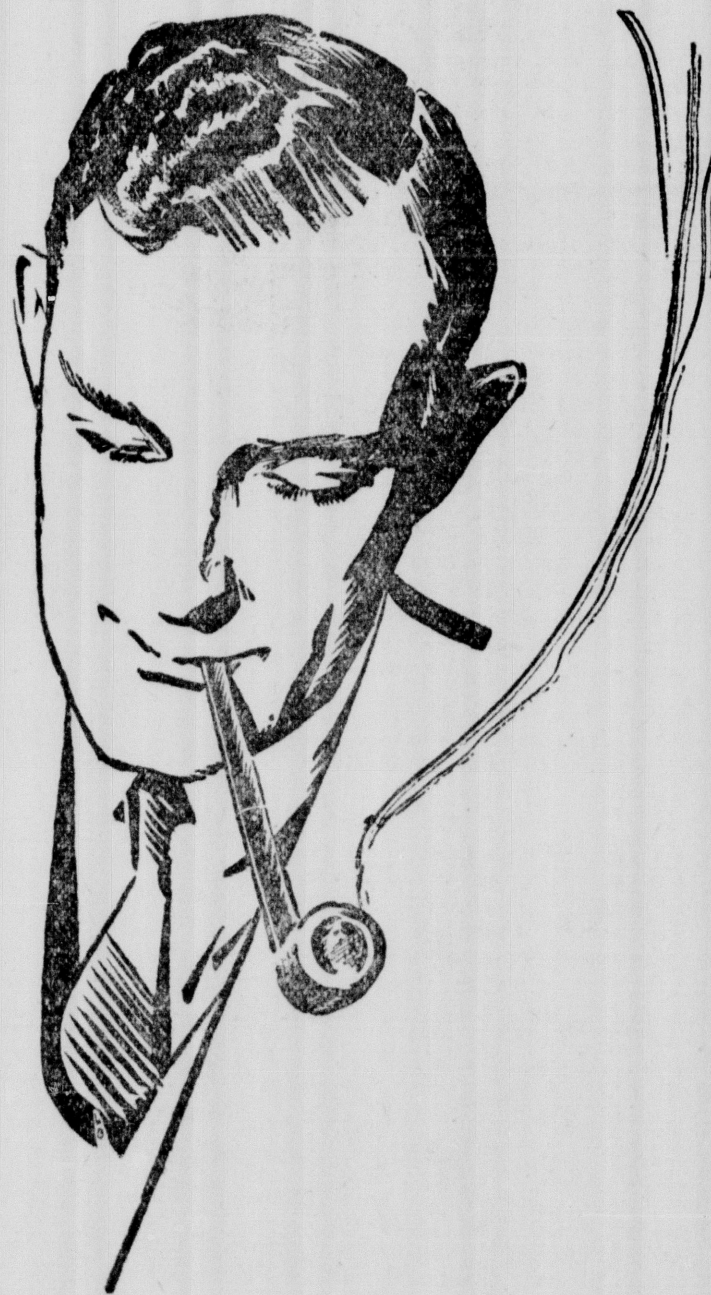

If you read only one side of the paper, you gain only a half-knowledge of the activities, the aims, the character of the community.

Read all and learn all.

THE ADVERTISEMENTS ARE NEWS WHICH CONCERN YOUR EVERY-DAY LIFE

Your pipe can be a cheer or a chore

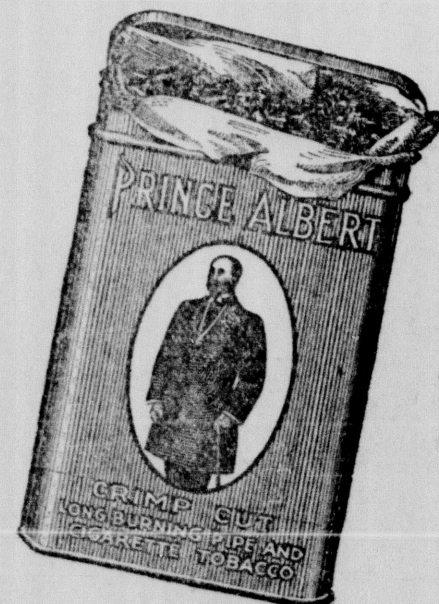

IT DEPENDS on what you feed it. Put it on a regular ration of Prince Albert and it will yield you pleasure, without stint or limit. "Never," you will say, "has the old pipe tasted so good." There isn't the ghost of a doubt about it. Just try it!

As you open the tidy red tin, close your eyes and drink-in that rich, rare aroma. You can hardly wait to get the taste of tobacco that smells as good as that. Then the big moment: You load up and light up. That's Prince Albert, Men, prime favorite of veteran smokers.

Cool as a magistrate fixing a fine. Sweet as the news that you won't have to pay it. Mild as a wifely rebuke for having spent too much on her birthday present. Mild, yet with that full tobacco body that satisfies your smoke-taste to the limit. A smoke!

Buy yourself a tidy red tin of P. A. and give your pipe a chance to deliver capacity joy. No matter how settled you appear to be on a smoke-program, try Prince Albert. Millions of pipe-happy men declare that no other tobacco is like it. You'll say so.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and punch removed by the Prince Albert process.
